

Telephone:
Gerrards Cross 4601

DOCUMENT NO. 7
NO CHANGE IN CLASS ☒
☐ DECLASSIFY
CLASS. IN FUTURE ☐ 1 3 0
NEXT REVIEW DATE: _____
AUTH: HQ TQ-2
DATE 12/4/81 REVIEWER: 018373

Aldbourn Manor,
Gerrards Cross,
Buckinghamshire, England.

Date as postmark.

Dear Sir or Madam,

NOW YOU CAN SUBSCRIBE TO A PRIVATE WORLD WIDE INTELLIGENCE SERVICE...

analysing and interpreting the events and forces that will shape the course of your business or career, your investments, the very world you live in.

The Publishers of INTELLIGENCE DIGEST and THE WEEKLY REVIEW extend a special offer to you.

To demonstrate the value of this unique service in these highly charged political days, we invite you to try a six months' trial subscription to both publications for only $12.50 ... far less than the regular cost!

During this trial period you will receive 26 issues of THE WEEKLY REVIEW and six monthly issues of INTELLIGENCE DIGEST. These same intelligence reports will be studied by officials in every important government in the world, military strategists, university heads, journalists, business leaders and selected private citizens as they consider their plans for the present and future.

Why do you need a private intelligence service? How does it differ from regular news channels?

Whether we like it or not we are all involved in international politics. There isn't a phase of your life or livelihood untouched by it. Your earnings, your investments, your family's security all depend on your ability to comprehend the tides of world affairs and to act advantageously with their movements.

To fully understand the differences between the operations and advantages of this private intelligence service and the regular news outlets available to the general public, it is necessary to understand the history and purpose behind INTELLIGENCE DIGEST and THE WEEKLY REVIEW.

Organised in Parliament

In the parlous days of 1938, an influential group of British Members of Parliament recognised a vital need for continued, supplemental reports to the ordinary flow of news. Realising that there were intimate contacts available to them in the highest political, economic and commercial circles all across the globe, they organised to sponsor a private intelligence service that would draw on their associations and be free to publish completely factual information without regard to any commercial obligations whatsoever.

Their intent, their methods of operation, their sources, their list of subscribers were never competitive to the regular press.

Most illustrative of this, perhaps, is the fact that to this day much of the information published is supplied not by professional newspaper people, but by agents in active positions of government and finance. Their access to information is not obtained by press cards; rather, in many cases they are on the scene as the persons actively engaged in making the news. Working often secretly and with personal associations at the councils and conference tables where political and financial history are being formed today, they are in positions to sense the pulse, to scent out the trends, to forecast and interpret the actions and effects to come.

Once operative, this confidential service quickly became established as a prime reference source for government, business and military leaders in all the major capitals of the world. Today, to central headquarters in Alderbourne Manor, London, come regular reports from a global network of seasoned, sophisticated intelligence agents - recording events from every continent; from the domed capitols, the mud huts, the teeming, tumultuous streets that are the crucible of our future.

Confirmed by history

For over twenty years, INTELLIGENCE DIGEST and THE WEEKLY REVIEW have consistently called the turns. They have given their subscribers foreknowledge of what to expect and where to look for it. Consider this record:

- 1939: Uncovered knowledge for advance prediction of The Soviet-Nazi pact preceding World War II.
- 1945: Outlined and predicted future pattern of the cold war.
- 1946: Pierced the Iron Curtain to record Russia's earliest secret work on the A-Bomb. In 1949 reported the first Russian atomic explosion three weeks before it was publicly acknowledged.
- 1947: Detailed development of Russian rocketry.
- 1948: Predicted war in Korea.
- 1952: Agents reported Stalin's physical decline. Gave precise details of ailment which later proved fatal.
- 1953: Report filed from Cuba advised of future revolution.
- 1956: From Paris came advance word on the fall of the French 4th Republic.
- 1957: Anticipated fall of independent Syria.
- 1960: PREDICTED THE COLLAPSE OF THE SUMMIT ... MUTINY AND SECESSION IN THE CONGO REPUBLIC!

World affairs are your affairs

More than ever before, INTELLIGENCE DIGEST and THE WEEKLY REVIEW assume major importance for the informed citizen. Our world today is a political one. The luxury of tending our fences and leaving others to tend theirs is one we can no longer afford. The option of ignoring the drives, the aspirations, the needs of people and nations in distant corners can prove fatal.

The first shot fired in a border skirmish in Nepal can ricochet down Wall Street. A new crisis in the Middle East ... a surprise turn in Algerian negotiations ... a sudden upsurge of Polish nationalism ... may have a far more decisive effect on your future than the results of the election.

Recognising this, a fully informed citizenry becomes a pre-requisite for peace and survival. Now, THE WEEKLY REVIEW and INTELLIGENCE DIGEST are expanding this private intelligence service in the U.S. Now, you can have a solid source of fact, not opinion; of trust, not rumour; and you can have it on a world wide basis.

Accept this trial offer

Because we are in England and you are in America, we realise you might hesitate to make a commitment sight unseen. Thus we have evolved this special introductory offer of $12.50 for six months. The service will come to you in two sections. Each week you receive THE WEEKLY REVIEW giving you the news quickly as it unfolds. INTELLIGENCE DIGEST publishes monthly, offering greater detail, summarisations and interpretations of the world scene. The regular cost of this service is fifty dollars annually, which includes air mail postage. Your first issue will be sent on publication date nearest receipt of coupon. At the end of your trial offer, you are, of course, free to terminate the service with no obligation.

SPECIAL SERVICE: INVESTMENT RECOMMENDATIONS

Due to its deep insight into economic, political and strategic moves throughout the world, this service is in an excellent position to recommend investments advantageously affected by such moves. Each issue of THE WEEKLY REVIEW bears a section titled, "Investment Recommendations", which has proven of great interest to our American subscribers.

If you are already a subscriber, please accept my apologies for troubling you.

Yours truly,

Kenneth de Courcy
Kenneth de Courcy.
Editor.

To The Publishers,
INTELLIGENCE DIGEST NEWS SERVICE,
Alderbourne Manor,
Gerrards Cross,
Buckinghamshire, England.

Gentlemen:

- * Please send me INTELLIGENCE DIGEST and THE WEEKLY REVIEW for six months at $12.50. If, after that, I decide not to continue, I merely notify you, and am not obligated in any way.
- * Please send me INTELLIGENCE DIGEST only for six months at $3.75.
- * Please send me THE WEEKLY REVIEW only for twenty-six weeks at $8.75.
- * Please strike out whichever does not apply.

☐ I enclose my cheque.

☐ Please send me an invoice.

Name: (Please print)

Address: (Please print)

.....

Date: Signature:

SEP 20 12 31 PM '60